

THEME OF THE CONFERENCE

The Department of Humanities and Post Graduate Department of History is going to organize a National Conference on "Exploring the Past to Understand the Present and Guide the Future". To-day we all face a number of new problems and challenges in all spheres of our life which are required to be tackled and sorted out. It is rightly said William Lund that "We study the Past to understand the Present, we understand the Present to guide the future" it means the study of past is very beneficial for us to understand the present in order to guide the future in the best possible way as they are integrated with each and it is not possible to study present without past and similarly the future without present.

The experience of the past show the right way to tackle the present problems and the future programmes can be chalked out in the light of present scenario.

The relationship between the Past, Present and Future shapes our understanding of the world around us. Whether it is the perceived consequences of past events, the urgency of present concerns, or the challenges of real or imagined futures, the structure of time intersect with and inform our sense of ourselves in myriad ways. Here the main aim of this conference is to provide an opportunity for researchers, professional's academicians and students to explore the dynamic relationship that exists among past, present and future through temporally inflected lens. Because enormous challenges throughout today's society mean that the work of social scientists is needed more urgently than ever.
